What is NLP?

The basic structure of NLP can be defined with 3 Prime Elements

- NEURO (Mind-Body) In NLP, Neuro highlights how our thoughts, feelings, and actions are influenced by our nervous system's processing.
- LINGUISTIC (Communication Medium) involves language and other non-verbal communication methods. NLP, suggests that our language and communication patterns affect how we think and act.
- PROGRAMMING (Behavioral Output) Programming in NLP means learned ways (patterns) of thinking and acting. It says we can identify, understand, and change these ways to reach our goals. We can also "reprogram" our thoughts and actions to achieve our desired goals.
- Putting it all together NLP explores the relationships between how we think (neuro), how we communicate with ourselves & others (linguistic), and create patterns of behavior and emotion that can produce excellence in all areas of our life (programming).
